

RED MEN WILL TRAIL TO WESTERLY

Plans For State Pow-wow April 3rd—Funeral of Reverend Mother M. Borromeo Largely Attended—Charles LaFontaine Dies Before Returning to His Native Canada—Cycle Club's Nineteenth Anniversary.

Minquaunt tribe, No. 10, Improved Order of Red Men of Westbury, killed its council fire Friday night in its wigwam on High street, at the eighth sun setting of the sun. The palefaced adopted into the tribe two seven suns ago had been killing around the camp of the tribe ever since, and becoming restive under the enforced inactivity expressed the desire that they be allowed to join the hunters and warriors in the chase and on the warpath. Before qualifying as hunters and warriors it was necessary that they take the hunters and warriors' degree, which instructs them in the arts and mysteries of the hunt and the warpath. They were duly instructed in the use of the bow and arrow, the spear and tomahawk; how to angle for the sturgeon and the red salmon, and to capture the deer and buffalo. Thirty-five took the degree, and stood the test to the satisfaction of the sachem and his Sagamoras.

At the setting of the sun on the 2d of April the tribe will light a big fire in the wigwam of Westbury, thus signaling the Red Men from all over the reservation to trail to Westbury for a big pow-wow. The chief's degree will be worked on 35 candidates. The great chiefs will come to Westbury from up the trail at Providence. A parade will be made. It will assemble in front of the wigwam on High street at 7 o'clock and proceed to the station. The great chiefs will arrive on the Federal express at 7:14. A parade will then be made over the principal streets of Westbury. The order of procession follows: Mishneva and his aids, mounted; Westbury band, Charles O. Gavitt, leader; float drawn by four horses, Indian village; the wigwam; the degree team; historical tableau, "The Spirit of '76"; the great chiefs; the members of the tribe; historical tableau, End of the trail.

The funeral of Sister Mary Borromeo (O'Neil), mother superior of the convent of St. Michael's parish, was held Friday with a solemn high mass of requiem in St. Michael's church. Rev. William R. Krasse, assistant at St. Michael's, was celebrant; Rev. Dr. Timothy J. Crowley, pastor of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, New London, deacon; Rev. Joseph Dreyer, assistant at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, sub-deacon; Rev. Peter McCosker, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, master of ceremonies. There was a very large attendance, including several Sisters of Mercy from New London and Norwich, the members of the Children of Mary society, and the pupils of St. Michael's school.

Rev. Patrick J. O'Leary, pastor of St. Michael's, delivered the sermon and referred to the great work achieved for the church by the earnest, devoted and gifted sister. He spoke of her executive ability in the conduct of the home for aged women in Westbury, and of her praiseworthy service for God and the church for many years.

After the offertory Jesu Dei was rendered by Mrs. Michael Driscoll, soprano; Martin H. Spellman, tenor, and C. Leo Higgins, bass. Burial was in old St. Michael's cemetery, beside the grave of Sister Mary Peter, who died twenty years ago. The bearers were Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, Dr. John L. May, C. Leo Higgins, Eugene Driscoll, Thomas F. Lenihan and Joseph McIver.

Charles Perry, president of the Washington Trust Co. that is to take over accounts of the First National bank of Hopkinton, Henry C. Nichols, president of the bank and treasurer of Providence have been appointed liquidating committee of the solvent bank. The bank was chartered in 1883 and has a capital of $100,000 and has paid dividends on its capital shares ranging from 7 per cent. in 1890 to 1892 to the present annual rate of 3 per cent. The stock has a par value of $100 a share, but of recent years there has been no market transaction recorded. The surplus and profits have lately been about $15,000, so that the book value of the shares would be about $115 each. In 1906 the stock sold at $115. The net deposits have been $1,060,000. This is the only bank in Rhode Island that declined to accept the new laws relative to national banks, hence the liquidation.

In its series of full book length novels published complete in a single issue, Munsey's Magazine for April contains a book of more than ordinary interest to the literary world—"You Never Know Your Luck," by Sir Gilbert Parker.

Not only is this Sir Gilbert Parker's newest novel, but it is the first long book of his that has ever been published in a single issue of a periodical. In obtaining its publication for Munsey's Magazine, Mr. Munsey has indeed scored a literary triumph and upon the heels of this achievement comes the additional announcement that The Munsey company has secured contracts from the publishers, Doubleday, Page & Co., E. P. Dutton, and the Macmillan company, for the publication of complete future issues.

In addition to the Sir Gilbert Parker novel, which would normally sell for $1.50 in bookstores in cloth covers, the April issue is replete with other telling features.

Edward Hungerford contributes an informative and thoroughly painstaking article under The Feminist Movement, which has ever been patri-trates of women who have made good in the world of business.

George Nicol contributes America's Failure in the World of Sport as an Englishman sees it, and Winthrop Riddle is responsible for a most timely and engrossing article on The Men Who Put Greece Back on the Map.

Probably one of the most forceful contributions to the literature of modern progressivism is the story contributed by Mr. Munsey himself in the shape of a paper entitled Starve the Railroads and We Starve Ourselves. In this article Mr. Munsey takes an entirely new stand in defense of the railroads, and by his clear perception and clean cut reasoning he has probably, in this article, given expression to the position of the railroads better than any writer who has thus far attempted the task.

The issue is replete with the usual number of special articles, short stories and poetry, and is taken from every standpoint, the best rounded and interesting magazine that has come to our desk this month.

Manchester. Mr. Tracy will spend Sunday at the same place.

WILLIMANTIC
